Ethical Standards for Disaster Volunteers

At Brethren Disaster Ministries Projects

BDM volunteers strive to...

1. Represent the Church in all they do with attitudes and actions that keep with the teaching of Christ and the values of the Church of the Brethren. Each volunteer is a living example of Christ ministering to others.
2. Understand and accept the reality that their actions and attitudes reflect on others.
3. Be sensitive to people and take time to listen to disaster survivors. (Listening requires an understanding heart, as well as a listening ear.)
4. Assist disaster survivors within the limits of their training and abilities.
5. Respect the belongings of disaster survivors, and be especially careful to salvage irreplaceable personal items such as family pictures, legal documents, wedding albums, etc.
6. Put their faith into action and should not engage in religious exploitation of disaster survivors. However, sharing of one's faith when asked, "Why are you here?" is appropriate.
7. Respect personal information obtained from disaster survivors. Sharing of financial matters and/or personal matters should not be done. Sharing general experiences of work done / persons served, is acceptable.
8. Be sensitive to persons' feelings and seek permission to take pictures of individuals and damaged property.
9. Keep the volunteer housing facility clean, leaving accommodations in as good or better shape than when they arrived, assisting in meal preparation, dishwashing, and general cleanup.
10. Be good stewards of donated funds, tools, materials and time; putting wants and desires aside in order to address the needs of others.
11. Be committed to stewardship of the environment and will take extra measures, whenever possible, to preserve natural resources and conserve energy.

BDM volunteers may not...

1. Solicit and/or contribute funds or in-kind donations for individual disaster survivors.
2. Accept damaged items from the disaster survivor nor attempt to salvage items from the disaster area for their personal use.
3. Accept cash contributions from persons being assisted. Persons wishing to make contributions are encouraged to make contributions by check, payable to the Church of the Brethren Emergency Disaster Fund.

I have read and agree to abide by the above standards to the best of my ability.
